Mr. Critic.

It is "amazing" the things a critic will find to criticize, sometimes. Because we said, "let the wrong use of language and amusements alone to retain the best use," Mr. Critic in last weeks PRESS, in some way or another, misinterpreted it so as to remark that our logic infered to let the whole of speech out lest we use it wrongly. Instead of the word "wrong" we might have said "sinful," but we really expected an intelligent understanding taken from the drift of the conversation. Nevertheless, Critic has not dislodged the logic, even in his way of putting it, unless he would criticize our Savior when He said, "if thine hand offend thee cut it off; if thine eye offend thee pluck it out." He did not say if these members cause you to sin, but that is what He meant. Therefore if you cannot use language or speech lest it cause you to sin, cut it out. It would be better to enter into life eternal, speechless, than to be cast into hell with all our babbling and profanity. Christ was criticized when he said "Thy Sins be forgiven thee," and when He knew it He gave His critics a kindergarten lesson. That is just what all critics need and, in reality, ask for. A critic holds the most embarrassing and unenviable position nameable, because they are so liable to be mistaken as well as misunderstood. We might quote a column of pert sayings, by many of our great men in history; upon the critic, some of which would make us blush to think we ever passed a criticizing remark on anything.

Lumber Complains.

Editor Press:—

There are some things transpiring in this place which taken into consideration does not look altogether justifiable. The tax-payers of Lumber township are paying three different taxes for school purposes—a mill tax, bond and per capita tax Out of this the teachers' get $35 to $45 per month of twenty days, at six hours per day. Now this all comes out of the tax-payers' pocket and as a tax-payer and agent for others, representing one-fourth of the taxes of Lumber township, I do protest against the school directors allowing teachers to adopt frivolous things that have a tendency to lead the mind away from the proper studies adopted by our state educators. I am in favor of anything that is right but I am not in favor of a teacher allowing her scholars to take up theatricals in the middle of the term, as was done here lately. At this time it has a tendency to detract from the proper studies, for which the citizens of Lumber are paying for. One theatrical, play or show, at the end of a term, would be or should be, sufficient, but when you cannot count them on the fingers of your right hand, I say halt. It is all right for young people to enjoy themselves but at the proper time and place, not when they have their hands in the people's pockets, even if a charge be made to purchase an organ to grind out their studies. It seems that the "A" or larger class runs the whole school. We have noticed this school out and the scholars running around town at three o'clock, p. m. Where are you, Mr. School Director? You are a sworn officer for the people and for the schools Echo answers "Where"? When I speak these words (if I pinch anybody's toes, I cannot help it) the truant officer ought to go for somebody but he has let out his job to run itself. We hope that some body has been benefitted, whether it be the teacher, scholars or parents. It will remain to be seen hereafter.

"This Day Thou Shalt."

Editor Press:—

It is of some benefit if not a great deal of profit to your readers that you have a correspondent who is occassionally bringing up topics for discussion that may, if handled rightly and in the right spirit, keep us on the alert and sharpen our thoughts along moral and religious lines. Of couse we do not all believe alike or think alike, therefore if we exchange views or impressions it sometimes results in bringing forth facts that have laid dormant, or in laying bare facts that have been looked upon as theoretical, such as the matter of "sudden change of heart or purpose," as mentioned by "The Observer." We all agree with "Observer" that an absolute and thorough change is not wrought in an instant, without previous thought, suffering or sorrow on the part of the penitent; but there was something about his remarks that led us to believe that he rather favored the idea of a gradual growing into complete change. If the impression we have of his thought is correct, we must certainly disagree with him, and from personal experience we would say that such a course is one suited to and always pursued by moralists—these strong hearted fellows who would rather not be classed with the "weak-minded Christians," because they are to weak-minded themselves to dare to confess a change of heart. The thief on the cross did not have much time to grow into spirituality—he grew in grace, but very rapidly. Suppose he had parlied over this sin, and that, and had died, rather than let loose all at once, as he did, renouncing sin and accepting Christ, would our Master have said, "This day thou shalt be with me in paradise," and if that does not mean that his repentence and acceptance was complete—and sudden—why did not the Saviour say likewise to the sufferer on the other cross? It takes a struggle to reach this .point The struggle may be but a few minutes and it may be for several days, or if one is fortunate enough to live it may continue into years, but the minute the penitent is truly sorry for his sins committed, and is determined to thereafter forsake the things that made him a sinner, with the help of Him who promises help, that minute he is a new creature. He has at once new thoughts and powers he never had before; he sees things in a different and better light than he ever did before. We might illustrate this with hundreds of cases of our own observation, but it is needless. We are well acquainted with many of the growing kind and sincerely hope they will not be called to their reward ere the growing process is finished. If this change does not come suddenly and completely it is the fault of the penitent—there is something he does not want to let go of, although he will not always acknowledge it. What did Christ say to the rich young man? "Sell that thou hast and give to the poor, then thou shalt have life eternal," or to that effect. There are many incidents in the Bible that ought to be convincing to any reader that the sudden change is the popular and proper manner and preferred by our Saviour.

The Observer.

Dean Freemantle in his book, "Christian Ordinance and Social Progress," quotes Charles Dickens as saying that our meals should be social sacraments It seems to be certain that the ancients attached a higher sacredness to the ordinary meal than do modern people. Few persons see anything sacred or sacramental in it. The prevalent assumption seems to be that food is placed upon the table for the sole purpose of supplying the physical man with nourishment. As a matter of fact the ordinary meal is something more than this, and it may help us to realize its possibilities if we shall understand better what are some of its higher aspects.

The meal is the highest and most intimate form in which social intercourse finds expression. It is the strongest bond and symbol of family fellowship. At meal time the members of the family are all assembled about the board, realizing the idea of a family circle. The father and mother at their respective ends of the table symbolize the principle of headship and authority. The queen of the home is the mother, and it is when she presides at the family board that her queenly quality and position are most characteristically manifest. The Observer is of the opinion that if more women realized what a high and important place the meal should hold in the family life, and how absolutely the making or the unmaking of a happy gathering about the family boards depends upon the wife and mother; and of every woman who is a housekeeper would set herself intelligently and enthusiastically to bring out of the meal time gathering all its latent possibilities of family of social life, there would be fewer cases before the divorce courts, and fewer men driven to drink. Like all sovereigns, the first duty of the queen of the family board is to respect her realms and her own position and authority, and her second duty is to enforce respect for these from her subjects. If she fails to take her position and responsibility seriously, if she betrays a want of respect for the table whose particular guardian she should be, if she is always herself the last loiterer to come to her place when the meal is served, if she is ready to absent herself from the table for trifling causes, or if she sits in her place reading the fashion journals when she ought to be pouring tea or helping the dessert; well, she is a warning example of all that the sovereign of the dining room should not be. Let it be repeated that if every wife and mother would but set herself enthusiastically and self-givingly and intelligently to bring out of the family meal-time gathering all latent possibilities of good, the problem of domestic harmony and happiness would be solved.

The meal is the greatest institute in the world for the cultivation of grace and refinement. If the only function of the meal were to satisfy physical hunger, this end might very well be served by giving each member of the household a key to the larder and letting him go thither for a "snack" whenever hungry. Some family boards are little better than a disorderly buffet, where each one comes and helps himself. In many other households the only reason why this condition does not prevail is that the housekeeper is unwilling to have meals ready at all hours. Why should we not all recognize frankly and fully that the meal stands for something more and higher than the mere satisfaction of physical hunger, that it is the highest symbol and realization of family social life and the great institute of social grace and refinement? If we recognize these aspects of the meal, let us also strive to realize our heightened ideal. Our limitations of means and other things may keep us far from the goal of ideal perfection; but, after all, the value of an ideal is not in that it makes us perfect, but in that it lifts us higher than we were before.

The widow—who since her rise to wealth, had put on society airs and cast off many of her old friends—came into the room in which the coffin lay. It was full of flowers and mourners A prominent floral piece was an achor. The widow gazed upon it. The idea that some of her cast-off friends were trying to call up memories of former days came to her mind. Turning to the assembled company she haughtily demanded; "Who th' divil sint that pick?"

A Shrewd Piece of Detective Work.

For some time past Manager Peabody, of the Cameron Store, at Cameron, has been missing articles from the store, such as tobacco, eggs and other commodities that could be easily carried in a person's packets. Mr. Peabody became suspicious of a certain party that hung around the store all winter, and concluded to try and verify his suspicions. Accordingly he made a pretext of going after his supper while Mr. Johnson went out after orders, leaving the suspected person alone in the store. Mr. Peabody went around to the back of the store and looked through the crack in the partition and saw the man helping himself to 50 cent plugs of tobacco. Mr. Peabody ran around to the front door and confronted the guilty party, taking the tobacco from him and administering a good sound chastisement. When he had finished the plug of tobacco was used up and the culprit's hair was filled with tobacco tags. Everybody congratulates Mr Peabody for his method of administering justice.

Open Letter From Hon. Josiah Howard.

Editor Cameron County Press:—

As the Republican Primaries, which are to be held in a few weeks, will select candidates for most important positions in our county, our party should select none but their best men to represent them.

I do not mean by this that a "ring" should be formed to dictate nominations, but with an open field for candidates the voters themselves should ballot for none but the best men who present their names as applicants, and then when they are elected, they should be held to a strict accounting of their office.

We will never have good Road Supervisors and County Commissioners until the people take enough interest in public affairs to see that all accounts are thoroughly audited and the officers, or their bondsmen, held to a full and strict account for all moneys, and business belonging to their office. In fact I do not think our public affairs have been public enough and that the citizens should make up a purse and hire some one to watch our public business and assist the regular auditors in checking over the accounts of all officers. This method would soon weed out all "graft" and incompetence in both the Borough and Township affairs and you can enter me as a willing subscriber to such a fund.

Yours truly,

JOSIAH HOWARD.

NOTES OF INTEREST.

The only Department store in Cameron county, LaBar's big brick block.

If you have not seen LaBar's Carpet Department, call and look it over. He will save you money. 4-4t

It is estimated that during the present year the railroads of the United States will expend in improving equipments, the sum of $200,000,000. This will give work to many men and the money will make itself felt in business channels.

LaBar has his new brick block completed now and it is a beauty—full of fine furniture, carpets, linoleums, lace curtains, portiers, rugs, big or little, dinner sets, toilet sets, in fact everything that goes to make up a first class furniture store. Call and look it over. No trouble to show you around. 4-4t

Gov. Pennypacker on Friday last approved a bill making it a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of from $100 to $300 for anyone to give or sell a cigarette or cigarette paper to any person under the age of 21 years. The new law amends the act passed by the last legislature which merely prohibited the sale of cigarettes to minors. Let this measure be rigidly enforced and wipe out the coffin nails, at least as far as the boys are concerned.

The Woman's Home Companion for April is the Easter number and well befits the season. A leading article, "Most Picturesque of Easter Celebrations," describes an Easter in Jerusalem. The second in the series of articles on food-adulteration comes close home in relating "How the Baby Pays the Tax." The fiction is unusually good—"The King of Diamonds," by Louis Tracy, producing new and fascinating complications, and in the second installment of "Martha and Her American Kitchen."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Regular Correspondent.)

Washington, March 25, 1905.

Editor Press:—

The inaugural ceremonies held on the Fourth of March have claimed another distinguished victim in Don Manuel de Azpiros, the Mexican Ambassador to this country. While on the East front of the Capitol during the inauguration the Ambassador was taken with a severe chill and to-day he died. The Doctors in attendance from the first held out no hopes of recovery and his government has been notified. Senator Bate of Tennessee died a few days after the Inauguration as a result of exposure on that inclement day, and the prostration of Secretary of State Hay is attributed to the same cause. A number of prominent men, among them Senator Foster of Louisiana experienced severe and confining attacks of grippe after Inauguration day and the number of less conspicuous victims of the exposure will never be known. The sacrifice of lives on this occasion should at least have the benefit of preventing another Inauguration as early in the season as the Fourth of March. In times of war men may die gladly for their country but it is criminal to claim martyrs in times of peace and rejoicing. Congress should be compelled by the people at no matter what cost to its indolence to change the date to April thirtieth, the date upon which Washington took the oath of office and which could almost with certainty be counted upon to produce weather which would offer no menace to the health and lives of the great crowds who are subject to exposure that day.

Ambassador Azpiroz was the first Ambassador from Mexico to serve as such. Until 1899 the country had been represented here by a minister plenipotentiary but during that year Senor Romero, then Minister from Mexico appealed to his government to raise the rank of the legation to that of an embassy in order that he might properly look after the interests of his country.

At one time he had by virtue of seniority been dean of the Diplomatic corps but gradually he was displaced by Ambassador who by virtue of higher rank took precedence over him. For this reason he was frequently and annoyingly made to wait for interviews at the State Department and at the White House until a whole line of men of whom he had previously held precedence had finished. Finally exasperated he called upon his government for a change and when it was finally granted he was on his death bed and Aspiroz suceeded to the title and the honors. An Ambassador is not only the representative of his country but he is also the Representative of his sovereign, and as it were a member of the royal family of his country. On account of this diplomatic fiction a number of embarrassing incidents have occured in Washington touching the relations of the Austrian and Mexican Ambassadors.

Senor Azpiroz is held by the Austrian government as one of those responsible for the execution of Maximilian and the pathetic insanity of poor Carlotta and is therefore not recognized by the representative of the Austrian Sovereign, Ambassador Hengermuller. On various occasions this has been overlooked in the entertainment of the two Ambassadors and various members of the two families have been assigned to each other as partners or dinner companions necessitating a hurried readjustment at the last moment and considerable embarrassment to every one concerned.

Railroad Accident at Cameron.

On Monday, while the Calder Brick Co.'s train crew were loading stone to repair their road, a link broke on one of the cars and it started down the steep grade toward the P. R. R. main tracks. There were five Italians on the car but four of them jumped off, while the fifth one stuck to the car and tried to set the brake. Unfortunately the brake was broken, so his efforts were in vain. The car gained in speed all the way and crashed into an Erie box car that was standing on the siding in front of the Valley House, knocking the box car off its trucks. The Italian was uninjured but nearly frightened to death. One of the men that jumped off landed in a pile of logs and cut his head quite badly. The train was in charge of engineer Mack and conductor Fauver, but no blame can be attached to them as the link was defective. J. F. S.

"Lee and Longstreet at High Tide."

The most interesting contribution to the history of the civil war of recent date is the biography of her husband by Mrs. Helen D. Longstreet. This book consists of two parts, the story of Gettysburg battle and Gen. Longstreet's part in it, which was arranged for publication in the fall of 1903 before his death; and the characterization and biography of the man, which has been written since his death. It must be said at the outset that this is one of the books that must have been published. It is necessary to the history of the great strife, and is deserved as a fit defense of an able and faithful soldier against jealous and untruthful depreciation, and, indeed more than that—of accusation of such disobedience and failure as to wreck the cause in which he was fighting in the crucial and decisive battle of the war—the worst charge that could be made against a solider. At the time when the advance chapters of Mrs. Longstreet's monograph were published we then, as we had done before, examined the records and determined in favor and justification of Gen. Longstreet—that he had done his full duty at Gettysburg: that he had disobeyed no order; that he had, in fact, subjected his own ideas of the battle in deference to Gen. Lee, to whose error it was due that the battle was lost,—if, indeed, any other plan could have saved it to the confederates. So that, having given this part of the book our full accord, it is not necessary further to note its admirable qualities, except so far as to praise the fine temper and the graphic excellence of the narrative.

The book is entitled "Lee and Longstreet at High Tide; Gettsburg in the Light of the Official Records," and it is published by the author, Helen D. Longstreet, at Gainesville, Ga. A portrait of Longstreet as lieutenant-general of the confederacy is the frontis-piece—which we have elsewhere in our columns reproduced—a splendid figure. There are also portraits of Gen. Lee, Gen. Sickles, and of Longstreet in 1901, his old age, besides other pictures. The introduction is by Maj-Gen. Sickles: it is well written, but without rhetoric; it contains many pleasant personal reminiscences, and as to Gettysburg, the testimony of Sickles is conclusive as to the whole matter at issue in respect to Gen. Longstreet's action at the important point and moment of the battle. His analysis of the situation is that which takes its place as history notwithstanding the ammadversions and acridities of Gen. Gordon and others, who would never forgive Longstreet's for becoming a member of the republican party and accepting office from it. Longstreet was a patriot, and took the quickest way to get back into the Union, with the hope that he should thus contribute to the unification of the South and North.

It does not lessen the value, and it brightens the beauty of Mrs. Longstreet's work that she dedicated her monograph. "To Longstreet at Gettsburg, from her who since childhood has held his heroic deeds as soldier and citizen among the priceless inheritances of the great republic," and that she prefaces her final chapter of the monograph with a striking quotation from the "Pilgrim's Progress:"

Mr. Valiant summoned; His will; His last words: Then, said he, "I am going to my Father's.....My sword I give to him that shall succeed me in my pilgrimage; and my courage and skill to him that can get it."..... And as he went down deeper, he said, "Grave' where is thy victory?" So he passed over, and all the trumpets sounded for him on the other side.

It is fine to discover in such a chronicle the spiritual sense, as if this realm of earthly conflicts really were (as it is) connected directly with another and greater sphere. Evidently Mrs. Longstreet does not stop with the grave.

She did not desire to write the life of her husband, but she was pursuaded to do so, and she did well to accede to persuasion. It is not necessary to follow record of what was really a gentle and heroic life, from the beginning. It is interesting to note that Grant and Longstreet were friends from West Point throughout their lives. The story of James Longstreet's home life in youth, of his career in the Mexican war, and of all the battles in which he took part in the civil war, is very succintly narrated, but with rare graphical talent. There is a beautiful chapter about Appomatox—the end, and Longstreet's part in those last days. That he was one of the principal generals of the South is without question.—Springfield, (Mass.) As Others See Us.

The American man is more consistently considerate of and generous to women than any fellow on earth, and in no country does he get sharper snubbing for his pains, says a writer in the London Chronicle. The handling of husbands by wives in America amounts to an art, a profession, almost a science. Based on the theory that the more one has to do the more one can accomplish, ladies who have hard-working, enterprising spouses simply retire from active life. If he manages his office and business satisfactorily, why not take over the house and servants? What is known as "a good husband" in the states is a first-class, non-tiring money-making machine, who gives everything, asks nothing and brags ceaselessly of his wife's perfections. Should he presume to criticise a charred chop or a flat souffle or complain at the size of the draper's bills, he is set down as a brute, and the wife is pitied as a first-class martyr! For such sins as the above two men of my acquaintance were forced to live in hotels a year at a time. They had committed the crime of finding fault with the impeccable sex, and were reduced to subjection by having their homes taken from them. For my part I think the Briton's way is best.

Anti-Kissing Women.

A little red button worn by some 300 women, old and young, married and indifferent, among the leading social sets of the City of Mexico, marks a new departure, or, rather, a new step, in progress, says the Los Angeles Times. This little, round, red button signifies membership in what is known at the Anti-Kissing league. Members of the league take solemn pledge not to kiss each other, in public or private, but put it on the ground that kissing is contagious, or, rather, the means of conveying contagious diseases from one fair lip to another. There is nothing visible to the naked eye in the constitution of this league against kissing other than members of the female persuasion, and, in fact, the practice, aside from the supposed danger of infection, is decidedly, to the male sense, not only deplorable, but unnecessary. When one woman takes two or three minutes of time in a street car to kiss three or four other women before alighting from the car she certainly violates the golden rule by making all those passengers wait. How far this new league will conduct its offensive and defensive campaign remains to be seen.

Chance for Composers.

I wish some one would write a new wedding hymn or two, as there is a great need for more appropriate ones than are generally used at present, says a writer in the Lady's Pictorial. In spite of the dismal tale of failures set forth in newspaper correspondence, and the lamentably ill matched pairs in "double harness" lately introduced to us, one does like a young couple to be launched into the new life with some signs of rejoicing, and the hymns ought certainly to have a festal tone rather than that of a dirge. "Oh, Perfect Love," though a most beautiful hymn, and now very generally used at weddings, is unsuitable, because set to music of intense sadness, and the line, "Theirs be the peace that calms all earthly strife," though of course, not intended to be taken in that way, is really too terribly suggestive of what may ensue. "The voice that breathed o'er Eden," is very much more suitable, and as it has now been resting for some time, pending the composition of new ones, it might well be revived.

While a district of Columbia measure was before the house the other afternoon Congressman Bartlett, of Georgia, being in a pesky mood, raised the point of no quorum. Speaker Cannon sent some messengers out for absentees and then proceeded to count the house in very leisurely fashion. Try as he could, he was unable to make the required number. A clerk at the desk said something to him as to the probable whereabouts of certain members, and Mr. Cannon answered in a stage whisper: "All right; you go hustle 'em in while I count slow again."

THE DEADLOCK IN DELAWARE

The Legislature Adjourned Sine Die Without Electing a United States Senator.

Dover, Del., March 24.—The forty-seventh joint ballot for United States senator was started at noon Thursday and resulted as follows: Addicks 15, Henry A. Dupont 14, Saulsbury 13, Hughes 8, Coleman Dupont 2. Total vote 52; necessary to a choice 27; no election. A motion was then made for the separation of the joint session, but it was deefated by 27 nays to 25 yeas.

Two more ballots were taken, the only change being the transfer of T. C. Dupont's two votes to State Senator Simeon S. Pennewill. There was no change in the fourth ballot and a recess was taken until 1:30 p. m.

Immediately after the reassembling of the joint session Senator Rose, democrat, moved that the joint assembly separate. A viva voce vote was taken and President Pro Tem. Conner, of the senate, who was presiding, declared the motion carried.

Senator Pennewill demanded a division and called for the ayes and nays, but President Conner told him he was too late and declared the joint assembly separated.

The vacancy in the United States senate from Delaware will therefore continue until the next session of the legislature, which convenes in January, 1907, unless there is an election by an extra session.

MAKE IT A DAY OF SOBRIETY

Anti-Saloon League Intends to Redeem the Fourth of July from Misuse.

Columbus, O., March 24.—The American Anti-Saloon league has declared for the "redemption of the Fourth of July from its prevalent misuse." National Superintendent P. A. Baker outlined the plan yesterday.

It is proposed to interest every temperance organization in the United States, and as far as possible to hold patriotic temperance meetings in every county in the country on July 4, 1905, and every year thereafter.

The matter has been brought to the attention of every national church organization. The Methodists through the secretary of the executive committee of the board of managers of the temperance society of the church, request the Anti-Saloon league to conduct the movement.

The league has 44 churches organized and has sub-district societies and upon the latter will largely depend the success of the movement. They are to secure prominent speakers, music and various attractions for meetings to be held in public places.

Six Men Drowned.

Charleroi, Pa., March 24.—During a heavy fog Thursday William Higgins, a ferryman at Lock No. 4, attempted to row five men across the Monongahela river in a skiff. When in midstream the ferryman lost his way and the boat was carried over the dam and capsized. The occupants were thrown into the stream, but before their call for assistance could be answered they were swept out of sight. Several hours later the ferryman's yawl was located over a mile below the dam, but none of the bodies have been recovered. The names of the five men are unknown.

A Double Execution.

Pittsburg, March 24.—Two men were hanged here Thursday and the first unsuccessful hanging was recorded in Allegheny county. Reno Dardaia went to the scaffold first and his neck was broken. William J. Byers followed him and when the trap was sprung the loop of the noose pulled away, precipitating him to the ground. For a minute he staggered around under the scaffold and then Sheriff Dickson caught him. The rope was again adjusted and Byers was again placed on the scaffold and the trap sprung. This time there was no mishap.

The War in the Far East.

Gunshu Pass, March 24.—Reports persist of Japanese turning movements on both flanks of the Russian army. Captured Japanese report an affray in the streets of Mukden on March 10, when a big detachment of Russians, the last to leave the city, were entrapped by Chinese bandits and a few Japanese soldiers, who closed the city gates and blocked the narrow streets. According to the report, which is not confirmed, not a Russian escaped.

A Famous Woman Dies.

Langton, Ont., March 24.—Abigail Becker, famed in song and story throughout Canada, is dead at her home at Welsingham Centre. Unaided she saved the crew of the schooner Conductor, wrecked at Long Point, on Lake Erie, in November, 1853. For her bravery the government gave her a farm, Buffalo shipowners $1,000 and the New York Life Saving association a gold medal.

Whiteman Is Acquitted.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 24.—Alonzo J. Whiteman, of Dansville, N. Y., last night was acquitted on a charge of grand larceny. There still are five indictments against Whiteman on charges of grand larceny, forgery and attempted larceny. All these charges are based on the transaction involved in the trial just ended.

A Deserter's Punishment.

Washington, March 24.—President Roosevelt has approved the sentence the court-martial inflicted upon Midshipman Arrowood, of North Carolina, recently tried for desertion from the navy. The sentence carries with it dismissal from the navy and the law provides that a man so dismissed shall not hereafter be eligible to any of the rights of citizenship.

Children Burned to Death.

Howard City, Mich., March 24.—Two children of Mr. and Mrs. George Hysell have been burned to death in their home at Alanson.

EXPLOSION KILLED MINERS

Six Men Dead and Four Injured Is the Result of a Disaster at Princeton, Ind.

Princeton, Ind., March 23.—Six miners dead and four injured, two fatally, is the result of an explosion in the mine of the Princeton Coal and Mining Co. Wednesday afternoon.

Of the dead all but Dill were dead when found in the mine. Their bodies were rescued two hours after the explosion, the delay being caused by the inability of the rescuers to combat after damp. The five injured, including George Dill, who later died, were brought to the surface 30 minutes after the explosion. They were found heaped together in an unconscious state. When the explosion occurred most of tthe miners had left the mine. Whether the explosion was a premature shot or an overcharge is not known.

Within a short time after the explosion the wives and relatives of the miners surrounded the mouth of the shaft and anxiously awaited each ascension of the cage. The miners worked heroically and a number were overcome by the foul air which filled the mine. The explosion hurled supporting timbers in every direction.

THE RIVERS ARE FALLING.

Crest of the Flood Reached Wheeling Late Last Night.

Wheeling, W. Va., March 23.—The river reached its maximum height here at 10 o'clock last night with 42 feet 7 inches on the gauge. It began falling shortly after 10 and at midnight was receding an inch an hour. The city is all but entirely isolated, only the Baltimore & Ohio being able to run trains east and west on the main line. Most of the large industrial establishments are idle for four days or longer, throwing 20,000 men out of employment and causing a wage loss of $150,000 to $250,000.

Pittsburg, March 23.—With both rivers receding, normal conditions, it is thought, will prevail within 48 hours. Much suffering is said to exist among the poor in the flooded section of Allegheny and the police were busy yesterday patrolling the district in skiffs, supplying the needy with coal, bread and provisions. One of the features of the flood which will be severely felt in Pittsburg before the week is out is the butter and egg famine which it is bringing about.

PEACE PARTY ENCOURAGED

A Majority of the Czar's Adivsers Believe that the War Should Cease.

St. Petersburg, March 23.—The party within the government which is urging the emperor to indicate to Japan Russia's willingness to end the war if a reasonable basis can be reached, has been greatly encouraged the last few days and an actual pacific proposal may be just ahead. The subject has occupied much of the attention of the conferences at Tsarskoe-Selo.

Gunshu Pass, March 23.—The Japanese appear to have given Russia a temporary respite from pursuit, probably for the purpose of reforming their forces as they did after the pursuit of the Russians north from Liao Yang. The Russian front runs southeast by northwest, with the Russian right much nearer the railroad than the left, while the Japanese position follows a line intersecting Kaiyuan.

Many Lives Were Endangered.

New York, March 23.—Many lives were endangered and damage to the extent of $50,000 was done by a fire in the nine-story Empire State building at Broadway and Bleecker streets yesterday. Scores of girls employed in the upper portion of the building were thrown into a panic when flames swept up from the seventh floor, where the fire started, and it was only by the greatest good fortune that all escaped. Many were bruised in the crush which followed the rush down the stairways. The fire was confined to the three upper stories.

The Hayes Faction Wins.

Washington, March 23.—The long standing controversy between the Burns and Hayes factions of the Knights of Labor was decided yesterday by the court of appeals of the District of Columbia favorably to the latter. J. W. Hayes was elected general secretary of the order several years ago, but his right to the office was disputed by Simon Burns, who instituted a contest in the supreme court of the district. The decision there was favorable to Burns, but it was reversed by yesterday's verdict.

Paid Fines for Peonage.

Savannah, Ga., March 23.—In the United States court yesterday William F. Crawley, an attorney of Waycross, and Thomas J. McClellan, a former sheriff of Ware county, entered pleas of guilty to the charge of causing citizens to be held in a condition of peonage. Judge Speer fined each defendant $1,000, but remitted $500 of that amount pending a further violation of the law. The fines were paid.

The Grand Jury Begins Work.

Chicago, March 23.—The special grand jury to investigate the so-called "beef trust" was completed yesterday and the huge mass of testimony available was immediately attacked.

A Valuable Find.

Milwaukee, Wis., March 23.—The Journal says: "What is pronounced by a New York connoisseur to be a genuine Gainsborough picture is in possession of a Milwaukee man. If it is an original the picture for which J. Pierpont Morgan paid a fancy price must be a duplicate."

Soldiers Killed Rioters.

Warsaw, March 23.—Serious agrarian disturbances occurred yesterday at Kutno. The military fired on peasant rioters and several of the latter were killed or wounded. There were similar riots at Ostrov.

"You don't mean to say that you're superstitious about opals?" he remarked. "Well," she replied, "I think it's unlucky to neglect an opportunity of getting one."

"I'd like to interest you in an insurance scheme—" "Get out! I'm tired of talking to insurance men." "Ah! That's just it. Our scheme is to insure you against the importunities of insurance men."

"Don't you think the custom of throwing rice at the newly married couple is idiotic?" asked the fluffy-haired maid. "Sure," answered the savage old bachelor. "Mush would be a great deal more appropriate."

"Is Mr. Rockefeller the richest man in the world?" asked young Mrs. Wealthywife. "He was until you became mine," replied the husband, with a tender glance. And Mrs. Wealthywife was so pleased that she let him have $40 to put through his latest infallible scheme for whipsawing the stock market.

WOMEN AND MEN.

If it wasn't for women the cynic would be out of a job.

The men who believe there should be a tax on bachelors are all married.

A wise wife conceals nothing from her husband except her own faults.

Tell a married woman she is a martyr, and she will be supremely happy.

A faithful wife provides for the inner man, and a model husband provides well for the outer woman.

When a man has more money than he knows what to do with, it stands to reason that he isn't married.

THE SIMPLE LIFE.

Ways That Are Pleasant and Paths That Are Peace.

It is the simple life that gives length of days, serenity of mind and body and tranquility of soul.

Simple hopes and ambitions, bounded by the desire to do good to one's neighbors, simple pleasures, habits, food and drink.

Men die long before their time because they try to crowd too much into their experiences—they climb too high and fall too hard. A wise woman writes of the good that a simple diet has done her:

"I have been using Grape-Nuts for about six months. I began rather sparingly, until I acquired such a liking for it that for the last three months I have depended upon it almost entirely for my diet, eating nothing else whatever, but Grape-Nuts for breakfast and supper, and I believe I could eat it for dinner with fruit and be satisfied without other food, and feel much better and have more strength to do my housework.

"When I began the use of Grape-Nuts I was thin and weak, my muscles were so soft that I was not able to do any work. I weighed only 108 pounds. Nothing that I ate did me any good. I was going down hill rapidly, was nervous and miserable, with no ambition for anything. My condition improved rapidly after I began to eat Grape-Nuts food. It made me feel like a new woman; my muscles got solid, my figure rounded out, my weight increased to 126 pounds in a few weeks, my nerves grew steady and my mind better and clearer. My friends tell me they haven't seen me look so well for years.

"I consider Grape-Nuts the best food on the market, and shall never go back to meats and white bread again." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

RESCUED FROM A MOB

Thousands of Resident of Brooklyn, N. Y., Were Ready to Lynch a Motorman.

HIS CAR HAD KILLED A BOY

Policemen Had to Use Clubs in Their Effort to Reach the Motorman—Mother of the Boy Fell Down Stairs When She Heard of His Death.

New York, March 25.—A squad of policemen was summoned from a station in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn yesterday to rescue a policeman and the motorman of a surface car from an angry mob of 2,000 persons who were trying tot punish the motorman for the death of a little boy. The child, Frederick Von Gilder, aged 4 years, ran in front of the car as it was passing through Park avenue and was struck and instantly killed.

Hardly had the motorman, James McCauley, left the platform of his car than several men seized him, with cries of "Lynch him," threw him down and jumped on him. The conductor took refuge in his car and locked both doors.

McCauley struggled back to the car and reached a switch iron, with which he knocked down several of his assailants. A policeman came to his rescue, but the mob attacked him also and the two men fought side by side.

Word was sent to a nearby police station for help and when the police arrived they had to beat their way through the crowd to reach the two men. The body of the boy was then removed from under the car. When his mother, Mrs. Robert Gilder, saw the body she fainted as she started down stairs and fell headlong, suffering injuries from which it was fearfering severe injuries.

WEEKLY TRADE BULLETIN

Temporary Adverse Features are More Than Offset by the Resumption of Outdoor Work.

New York, March 25.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Spring trade responds to seasonable weather, and shipments of merchandise have increased so rapidly that railway facilities are severely taxed.

The customary damage from floods has rendered many mills idle, and several minor events added to the number of unemployed, but these temporary adverse features are more than offset by the resumption of outdoor work, especially in building operations and on the farms. Manufacturing activity continues, the best news of the week coming from the iron and steel industry. Textile plants are also increasingly busy.

Failures this week numbered 255 in the United States against 226 last year, and 16 in Canada compared with 15 a year ago.

HE REFUSES TO ARBITRATE

President Castro Sends a Defiant Answer to Our Minister in Venezuela—Situation Not Critical.

Washington, March 25.—Minister Bowen cabled the state department yesterday from Caracas that President Castro had flatly refused to arbitrate the pending issues between Venezuela and the United States.

That the situation is not regarded as acute at this time was indicated clearly by the determination of the president and his advisers to pay no present heed to President Castro's refusal to arbitrate the existing differences. It is the intention of the president and Secretary Taft who, in the absence of Secretary Hay is being relied upon for advice in matters pertaining to foreign affairs, simply to await further developments in Venezuela.

A Very Good Sign of Peace.

Paris, March 25.—The prospects of peace between Russia and Japan assumed a more definite and almost a tangible aspect Friday as the result of the announcement of the resumption of negotiations for a Russian loan. A Gunshu Pass dispatch says: The Russian retreat has reached the village of sipinghai, 74 miles north of Tie Pass, where it has halted. The Japanese are reported to be advancing on Sipinghai along the railway and on both flanks.

"Get Rich Quick" Promoter Arrested.

Philadelphia, March 25.—Stanley Francis, alias Arthur S. Foster, a promoter of many companies, was arrested by United States postal inspectors Friday on the charge of using the mails for fraudulent purposes and after a hearing before United States Commissioner Craig he was held in $100,000 bail for further hearing. Francis was unable to furnish bail.

Senor De Azpiroz Dies.

Washington, March 25.—Senor Manuel De Azpiroz, Mexico's first ambassador to the United States, died Friday at the Mexican embassy, surrounded by his family.

The Lash Is Used on Highwaymen.

Winnipeg, Man., March 25.—Sandercock and MacDonald, highwaymen who were sentenced by Judge Richards, one to 15 and the other to ten years' imprisonment and to receive 75 lashes, for robbery of Winnipeg merchants, Friday received their first installment of 25 lashes.

Jules Verne Is Dead.

Amiens, France, March 25.—Jules Verne died here Friday. His family was at his bedside. M. Verne had been subject to chronic diabetes, but it did not assume a critical aspect until March 10.

NO PLACE FOR DRAGON FLY

Owner of Attractive Pompadour Resents an Insinuating Assertion.

A big brown dragon fly floated leisurely into a Sixth avenue department store the other day and zigzagged its way to the lace counter, where it made one of the midair pauses so common to the insect and so startling to the spectator unacquainted with its ways, relates the New York Sun.

The pause was made directly in front of a blue-eyed young woman with auburn hair, rampant, a la pompadour, who stood behind the counter.

The blue-eyed young woman was so amazed at the fierce-eyed, quivering apparition that she was speechless; but when the dragon fly, satisfied with its inspection, made a wild dash toward that rampant head, the owner sent up a shriek which at once communicated itself to the other young women behind that and adjacent counters, until it would have been thought that wholesale murder was being done there.

"Sh!" said some one at last, who seemed to know something. "It's only a harmless dragon fly looking for flies!"

The blue-eyed young woman with the ambitious pompadour rose to the occasion promptly. With unmasked indignation she tossed her flamboyant head and said:

"The very idea! There ain't no flies on me."

WILL "HIT THE TRAIL."

Visitors at the Next World's Fair Will Have a Change from "Midway" and "Pike."

One "went down" the Pike in St. Louis and "took in" the Midway at Chicago—but it will be "hit the trail" at the western world's fair at Portland, says the Kansas City Star.

All of these familiar sights which have come to be expected of every well regulated "amusement street" will be a part of the Trail, and many new startling novelties are promised.

While the march of progress has changed the character of the shows, the methods of doing business will remain the same. The harsh-voiced spieler will cry out as of old, and the best spieler will get most of the people. Many of the shows, probably most of them, at the Lewis and Clark exposition will be of real educational value, but does the spieler emphasize this fact? Not he. He knows that the people want to be amused.

"Have you saw Cora?" he bellows, and the crowd stops a moment and smiles at his bad grammar, and wonders who Cora is. And then he proceeds to tell them of her marvelous feats of digestion.

"You come on, John," says the little woman in a last year's bonnet. "We've seen enough of them shows."

"Well, we haven't saw Cora, have we?" and the big man laughs and buys two tickets.

Big Packers Exonerated by Garfield.

The report of Commissioner Garfield on the methods under which the business of the so-called beef trust is conducted has been published and a closely printed book of over 300 pages is the result of the examination to which that industry has been subjected. The report is very full and complete, every phase of the business having been investigated with the utmost care and thoroughness, as is shown by exhaustive tables of figures, with authenticated facts and statistical data covering almost every detail of the business.

After a careful reading of this report it is impossible to arrive at any other conclusion than that for some time past there has been a great deal said and written about this great industry that has had no foundation in fact. It would appear that a popular clamor has resulted from newspaper comment and the passage of many resolutions by those who, as plainly shown by the report, were without any definite information. This report, the result of an inquiry in compliance with a congressional demand upon the secretary of commerce and labor, is so complete and detailed that, as a whole, it will not of course be read by the public at large, but the facts and figures, authenticated by government expert examiners, which it contains, show with indisputable certainty that the hue and cry raised during the past year against the packers has been at least unreasonable and much of it, indeed, has been hysterical.

These officially ascertained facts are a surprise to very many who have been impressed by the denunciatory language they have read and heard for some time past, for they now find that, instead of the great profits said to be made by western packers, the business is being conducted upon a smaller margin of profit than that prevailing in any other industry. Commissioner Garfield himself says: "The year 1902, instead of being one of exorbitant profits, as has been commonly supposed, was less profitable than usual," and this will be remembered as the year when the highest prices ruled and the packers were being everywhere accused of extortionate methods. Regarding this very year when the complaints of injustice were the loudest and the most unanimous, the commissioner says: "In fact during the months when the prices of beef were the highest, some, at least, of the leading packers were actually losing money on every head of cattle slaughtered" for the reason, he continues, "it was not possible to advance the prices of beef in full proportion to the great advance in the prices of cattle at that time."

The report also shows that the public belief that enormous profits are usually characteristic of the beef business is entirely erroneous, as it proves, after full investigation, that the maximum net return on the several investments was two and three-tenths per cent. and the minimum one and eight-tenths per cent.

The report is much too detailed and extensive to attempt any thorough review, but it clearly demonstrates that there has been a great deal of unnecessary alarm on the part of the public as to the meat situation and a good deal of loose denunciation of packers about whose methods and business there has been little or no real information. The conclusions of Commissioner Garfield are all the more valuable as the investigation was by no means commenced in anything like a friendly or partial spirit and that it has been full and complete is shown when he says: "All the statistics taken from the books of the companies were checked in the most thorough manner. Totals selected at random were veritied by the items. Many typical bunches of cattle have been traced from the time of purchase to the time of sale as dressed beef, thus obtaining accurate information from original records of costs, of actual selling prices and of ultimate profits. In many cases the statements of cattle purchased by the companies were compared with accounts of the commission houses through whom the cattle were sold. The various checks thus employed insure the absolute accuracy of the figures."

SCIATIC TORTURE

PAIN SUFFERED BY MR. MARSTON AS GREAT AS MORTAL CAN STAND.

For Six Months He Could Not Turn in Bed—He Tells of a Remedy Which Has Given Perfect Relief.

The case of Mr. Marston shows that sciatica can be cured, and no one afflicted by it should allow himself to be disheartened. He was first stricken about a year ago, and for six months he suffered pain which he thinks the most intense that any man could possibly stand.

Asked about the details of his remarkable recovery, Mr. Marston gave the following account: "I was attacked by a numbness or dull feeling just back of my right hip. I didn't know what the matter was, but thought it was simply a stiffness that would wear away in a short time. It didn't, however, and soon the pain became so very bad that every step was torture for me. When I finally succeeded in getting home, it was just as much as I could do to reach my room and get to bed.

"The doctor was sent for, and when he had examined me he said I had sciatica. He prescribed for me, and advised me not to try to leave my bed. The advice was unnecessary for I couldn't get out of bed if I wanted to. It was impossible for me to turn from one side to the other. The moment I attempted to move any part of my body, the pain became so excruciating that I would have to lie perfectly motionless.

"I suffered this torture for six months without getting any relief. Then I discharged the doctor, and on the advice of a friend I bought a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and began to take them, three at a dose, three times a day. I was determined to give them a thorough trial.

"Two months after I began to use them I was able to leave my bed and walk about the house, and a month later I was entirely cured and able to go about my work as usual. I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best medicine I ever used, and I heartily recommend them to anyone who suffers from sciatica."

Mr. Marston is a prosperous farmer and may be reached by mail addressed to Charles P. Marston, Hampton P. O., New Hampshire. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have cured other painful nervous disorders, such as neuralgia, partial paralysis and locomotor ataxia. They are sold by all druggists.

NOT A PATENT MEDICINE

Homel, the Guaranteed Catarrh Cure. Prescribed by Physicians.

No one should confound Hyomei with the patent medicines that are advertised to cure catarrh. It is as far superior to them all as the diamond is more valuable than cheap glass. Their composition is secret, but Hyomei gives its formula to all reputable physicians.

Its base is the valuable eucalyptus oil, famous for its antiseptic qualities. This is combind with aromatic and healing gums and balsams, making a pure liquid, which when used in the Hyomei pocket inhaler, fills the air you breath with germ killing, disease destroying and healing powers that kills all catarrhal germs there may be in the throat, nose and lungs.

How foolish it is to try and cure catarrh by swallowing tablets or liquids. The only natural way to cure the diseases of the respiratory organs is to breathe Hyomei.

This treatment has been so successful, curing 99 per cent. of all who have used it, that Hyomei is now sold by L. Taggart under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure. You run no risk whatever in buying Hyomei. If it did not possess unusual powers to cure, it could not be sold upon this plan.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs $1.00 and comprises an inhaler, a bottle of Hyomei and a dropper. The inhaler will last a lifetime; and additional bottles of Hyomei can be obtained for 50 cents.

Dear Sir: Here's a paint that's being sold to bargain hunters

10 per cent. lead
50 per cent. zinc
20 per cent. barytes
20 per cent. whiting

Barytes and whiteing are sand and white-wash, not paint.

Some people must like gold bricks. The name of that paint is ——— "pure lead-and zinc." The dealer who sells it says it's as good as Devoe.

Yours truly

P. S. Murry & Coppersmith sell our paint.

Is It Right.

Is it right that a property-owner should lose $4.20 to let a dealer make 50 cents? A dealer makes more on fourteen gallons of ready for use paint. at $1.50 per gallon, than our agent does on eight gallons of L. & M. paint and six gallons of linseed oil, which make fourteen gallons of the best paint in the world, at $1.20 per gallon; the property-owner loses just $4.20. Is it right?

It only requires 4 gallons of L. & M., and 3 gallons linseed oil to paint a moderate sized house.

DON'T YOU KNOW?

Now, life is just a little striving,
Don't you know?
Some failure and a lot of thriving,
Don't you know?
The world is built on such a plan
That it is up to every man
To do the very best he can,
Don't you know?

Now, love is just a funny feeling,
Don't you know?
O'er you it gently comes a-stealing,
Don't you know?
It runs its troubled little course,
And then it's marriage—if divorce,
Why, alimony, then, perforce,
Don't you know?

Now, fame is just a fleeting bubble,
Don't you know?
To get it causes lots of trouble,
Don't you know?
Perhaps it lasts a year or two,
And then the world finds some one new
And straightway has no use for you,
Don't you know?

Now, what's the use to fret and worry,
Don't you know?
No need to fly around and hurry,
Don't you know?
You might as well just jog along,
And laugh and love and sing your song,
The world goes on or right or wrong,
Don't you know?

Now, what's the use to always grumble,
Don't you know?
And fret because you chance to stumble,
Don't you know?
The world was here before you came,
And when you're gone 'twill be the same,
So win your praise or bear your blame,
Don't you know?

CHAPTER XVII.

Orders came from the War department providing a detail to go and help man the guns of Perry at Put-in Bay. I had the honor of leading them on the journey and turning them over to the young captain. I could not bear to be lying idle at the garrison. A thought of those in captivity was with me night and day, but I could do nothing for them. I had had a friendly talk with Gen. Brown. He invited and received my confidence touching the tender solicitude I was unable to cover. I laid before him the plan of an expedition. He smiled, puffing a cigar thoughtfully.

"Reckless folly, Bell," said he, after a moment. "You are young and lucky. If you were flung in the broad water there with a millstone tied to your neck, I should not be surprised to see you turn up again. My young friend, to start off with no destination but Canada is too much even for you. We have no men to waste. Wait; a rusting saber is better than a hole in the heart. There will be good work for you in a few days, I hope."

And there was—the job of which I have spoken, that came to me through his kind offices. We set sail in a schooner one bright morning—D'ri and I and 30 others—bound for Two-Mile Creek. Horses were waiting for us there. We mounted them, and made the long journey overland—a ride through wood and swale on a road worn by the wagons of the emigrant, who, even then, was pushing westward to the fertile valleys of Ohio. It was hard traveling, but that was the heyday of my youth, and the bird music, and the many voices of a waning summer in field and forest, were somehow in harmony with the great song of my heart. In the middle of the afternoon of September 6, we came to the bay, and pulled up at headquarters, a two-story frame building on a high shore. There were wooded islands in the offing, and between them we could see the fleet—nine vessels, big and little.

I turned over the men who were taken to the ships immediately and put under drill. Surgeon Usher of the Lawrence and a young midshipman rowed me to Gibraltar island, well out into the harbor, where the surgeon presented me to Perry—a tall, shapely man, with dark hair and eyes, and ears hidden by tufts of heavy beard. He stood on a rocky point high above the water, a glass to his eye, looking seaward. His youth surprised me: he was then 28. I had read much of him and was looking for an older man. He received me kindly: he had a fine dignity and gentle manners. Somewhere he had read of that scrape of mine—the last one there among the Avengers. He gave my hand a squeeze and my sword a compliment I have not yet forgotten, assuring me of his pleasure that I was to be with him awhile. The greeting over, we rowed away to the Lawrence. She was chopping lazily at anchor in a light breeze, her sails loose. Her crew cheered her commander as we came under the frowning guns.

"They 're tired of waiting," said he; "they 're looking for business when I come aboard."

He showed me over the clean decks: it was all as clean as a puritan parlor.

"Captain," said he, "tie yourself to that big bow gun. It 's the modern sling of David, only its pebble is big as a rock. Learn how to handle it, and you may take a fling at the British some day."

He put D'ri in my squad, as I requested, leaving me with the gunners. I went to work at once, and knew shortly how to handle the big machine. D'ri and I convinced the captain with no difficulty that we were fit for a fight so soon as it might come.

It came sooner than we expected. The cry of "Sail ho!" woke me early one morning. It was the 10th of September. The enemy was coming. Sails were sticking out of the misty dawn a few miles away. In a moment our decks were black and noisy with the hundred and two that manned the vessel. It was every hand to rope and windlass then. Sails went up with a snap all around us, and the creak of of blocks sounded far and near. In 12 minutes we were under way, leading the van to battle. The sun came up, lighting the great towers of canvas. Every vessel was now feeling for the wind, some with oars and sweeps to aid them. A light breeze came out of the southwest. Perry stood near me, his hat in his hand. He was looking back at the Niagara.

"Run to the leeward of the islands," said he to the sailing-master.

"Then you 'll have to fight to the leeward," said the latter.

"Dont' care, so long as we fight," said Perry. "Windward or leeward, we want to fight."

Then came the signal to change our course. The wind shifting to the southeast, we were all able to clear the islands and keep the weather-gauge. A cloud came over the sun; far away the mist thickened. The enemy wallowed to the topsails, and went out of sight. We had lost the wind. Our sails went limp; flag and pennant hung lifeless. A slight rain drizzled down, breaking the smooth plane of water into bubbles. Perry stood out in the drizzle as we lay waiting. All eyes were turning to the sky and to Perry. He had a look of worry and disgust. He was out for a quarrel, though the surgeon said he was in more need of physic, having the fever of malaria as well as that of war. He stood there, tall and handsome, in a loose jacket of blue nankeen, with no sign of weakness in him, his eyes flashing as he looked at the sky.

D'ri and I stood in the squad at the bow gun. D'ri was wearing an old straw hat; his flannel shirt was open at the collar.

"Ship stan's luk an ol' cow chawin, 'er cud," said he, looking off at the weather. "They 's a win' comin' over there. It 'll give 'er a slap 'n th' side purty soon, mebbe. Then she 'll switch 'er tail 'n' go on 'bout 'er business."

In a moment we heard a roaring cheer back amidships. Perry had come up the companionway with his blue battle-flag. He held it before him at arm's-length. I could see a part of its legend, in white letters, "Don't give up the ship."

"My brave lads," he shouted, "shall we hoist it?"

Our "Ay, ay' sir!" could have been heard a mile away, and the flag rose, above tossing hats and howling voices, to the mainroyalmasthead.

The wind came; we could hear the sails snap and stiffen as it overhauled the fleet behind us. In a jiffy it bunted our own hulls and canvas, and again we began to plough the water. It grew into a smart breeze, and scattered the fleet of clouds that hovered over us. The rain passed; sunlight sparkled on the rippling plain of water. We could see the enemy; he had hove to, and was waiting for us in a line. A crowd was gathering on the high shores we had left to see the battle. We were well in advance, crowding our canvas in a good breeze. I could hear only the roaring furrows of water on each side of the prow. Every man of us held his tongue, mentally trimming ship, as they say, for whatever might come. Three men scuffed by, sanding the decks. D'ri was leaning placidly over the big gun. He looked off at the white line, squinted knowingly, and spat over the bulwarks. Then he straightened up, tilting his hat to his right ear.

"They're p'intin' their guns," said a swabber.

"Fust they know they'll git spit on," said D'ri, calmly.

Well, for two hours it was all creeping and talking under the breath, and here and there an oath as some nervous chap tightened the ropes of his resolution. Then suddenly, as we swung about, a murmur went up and down the deck. We could see with our naked eyes the men who were to give us battle. Perry shouted sternly to some gunners who thought it high time to fire. Then word came: there would be no firing until we got close. Little gusts of music came chasing over the water faint-footed to our decks—a band playing "Rule Britannia." I was looking at a brig in the line of the enemy when a bolt of fire leaped out of her and thick belches of smoke rushed to her topsails. Then something hit the sea near by a great hissing slap, and we turned quickly to see chunks of the shattered lake surface fly up in nets of spray and fall roaring on our deck. We were all drenched there at the bow gun. I remember some of those water-drops had the sting of hard-flung pebbles, but we only bent our heads, waiting eagerly for the word fire.

"We was th' ones 'at got spit on," said a gunner, looking at D'ri.

"Wish they'd let us holler back," said the latter, placidly. "Sick o' holdin' in."

We kept fanning down upon the enemy, now little more than a mile away, signalling the fleet to follow.

"My God! see there!" a gunner shouted.

The British line had turned into a reeling, whirling ridge of smoke lifting over spurts of flame at the bottom. We knew what was coming. Untried in the perils of shot and shell, some of my gunners stooped to cover under the bulwarks.

"Pull 'em out o' there," I called, turning to D'ri, who stood beside me.

The storm of iron hit us. A heavy ball crashed into the after bulwarks, tearing them away and slamming over gun and carriage, that slid a space, grinding the gunners under it. One end of a bowline whipped over us; a jib dropped; a brace fell crawling over my shoulders like a big snake; the foremast went into splinters a few feet above the decks, its top falling over, its canvas sagging in great folds. It was all the work of a second. That hasty flight of iron, coming out of the air, thick as a flock of pigeons, had gone through hull and rigging in a wink of the eye. And a fine mess it had made. Men lay scattered along the deck, bleeding, yelling, struggling. There were two lying near us with blood spurting out of their necks. One rose upon a knee, choking horribly, shaken with the last throes of his flooded heart, and reeled over. The Scorpion of our fleet had got her guns in action; the little Ariel was also firing. D'ri leaned over, shouting in my ear.

"Don't like th' way they 're whalin' uv us," he said, his cheeks red with anger.

"Nor I," was my answer.

"Don't like t' stan' here an' dew nuthin' but git licked," he went on. "'T ain' no way nat'ral."

Perry came hurrying forward.

"Fire!" he commanded, with a quick gesture, and we began to warm up our big twenty-pounder there in the bow. But the deadly scuds of iron kept flying over and upon our deck, bursting into awful showers of bolt and chain and spike and hammerheads. We saw shortly that our brig was badly out of gear. She began to drift to leeward, and being unable to aim at the enemy, we could make no use of the bow gun. Every brace and bowline cut away, her canvas torn to rags, her hull shot through, and half the men dead or wounded, she was, indeed, a sorry sight. The Niagara went by on the safe side of us, heedless of our plight. Perry stood near, cursing as he looked off at her. Two of my gunners had been hurt by bursting canister. D'ri and I picked them up, and made for the cockpit. D'ri's man kept howling and kicking. As we hurried along over the bloody deck, there came a mighty crash beside us and a burst of old iron that tumbled me to my knees.

A cloud of smoke covered us. I felt the man I bore struggle and then go limp in my arms I felt my knees getting warm and wet. The smoke rose; the tall, herculean back of D'ri was just ahead of me. His sleeve had been ripped away from shoulder to elbow, and a spray of blood from his upper arm was flying back upon me. His hat crown had been torn off, and there was a big rent in his trousers, but he kept going. I saw my man had been killed in my arms by a piece of chain, buried to its last link in his breast. I was so confused by the shock of it all that I had not the sense to lay him down, but followed D'ri to the cockpit. He stumbled on the stairs, falling heavily with his burden. Then I dropped my poor gunner and helped them carry D'ri to a table, where they bade me lie down beside him.

"It is no time for jesting," said I, with some dignity.

"My dear fellow," the surgeon answered, "your wound is no jest. You are not fit for duty."

I looked down at the big hole in my trousers and the cut in my thigh, of which I had known nothing until then. I had no sooner seen it and the blood than I saw that I also was in some need of repair, and lay down with a quick sense of faintness. My wound was no pretty thing to see, but was of little consequence, a missile having torn the surface only. I was able to help Surgeon Usher as he caught the severed veins and bathed the bloody strands of muscle in 'D'ri's arm, while another dressed my thigh. That room was full of the wounded, some lying on the floor, some standing, some stretched upon cots and tables. Every moment they were crowding down the companionway with others. The cannonading was now so close and heavy that it gave me an ache in the ears, but above its quaking thunder I could hear the shrill cries of men sinking to hasty death in the grip of pain. The brig was in sore distress, her timbers creaking, snapping, quivering, like one being beaten to death, his bones cracking, his muscles pulping under heavy blows. We were above water-line there in the cockpit, we could feel her flinch and stagger. On her side there came suddenly a crushing blow, as if some great hammer, swung far in the sky, had come down upon her. I could hear the split and break of heavy timbers; I could see splinters flying over me in a rush of smoke, and the legs of a man go bumping on the beams above. Then came another crash of timbers on the port side. I leaped off the table and ran, limping, to the deck, I do not know why; I was driven by some quick and irresistable impulse. I was near out of my head, anyway, with the rage of battle in me and no chance to fight. Well, suddenly, I found myself stumbling, with drawn saber, over heaps of the hurt and dead there on our reeking deck. It was a horrible place: everything tipped over, man and gun and mast and bulwark. The air was full of smoke, but near me I could see a topsail of the enemy. Balls were now plunging in the water alongside, the spray drenching our deck. Some poor man lying low among the dead caught me by the boot-leg with an appealing gesture. I took hold of his collar, dragging him to the cockpit. The surgeon had just finished with D'ri. His arm was now in sling and bandages. He was lying on his back, the good arm over his face. There was a lull in the cannonading. I went quickly to his side.

"How are you feeling?" I asked, giving his hand a good grip.

"Nuthin' t' brag uv," he answered. "Never see nobody git hell rose with 'em s' quick es we did—never."

Just then we heard the voice of Perry. He stood on the stairs calling into the cockpit.

"Can any wounded man below there pull a rope?" he shouted.

D'ri was on his feet in a jiffy, and we were both clambering to the deck as another scud of junk went over us. Perry was trying with block and tackle to mount a carronade. A handful of men were helping him. D'ri rushed to the ropes, I following, and we both pulled with a will. A sailor who had been hit in the legs hobbled up, asking for room on the rope. I told him he could be of no use, but he spat an oath, and pointing at my leg, which was now bleeding, swore he was sounder than I, and put up his fists to prove it. I have seen no better show of pluck in all my fighting, nor any that ever gave me a greater pride of my own people and my country. War is a great evil, I begin to think, but there is nothing finer than the sight of a man who, forgetting himself, rushes into the shadow of death for the sake of something that is better. At every heave on the rope our blood came out of us, until a ball shattered a pulley, and the gun fell. Perry had then a fierce look, but his words were cool, his manner dauntless. He peered through lifting clouds of smoke at our line. He stood near me, and his head was bare. He crossed the littered deck, his battle-flag and broad pennant that an orderly had brought him trailing from his shoulder. He halted by a boat swung at the davits on the port side—the only one that had not gone to splinters. There he called a crew about him, and all got aboard the boat—seven besides the younger brother of Captain Perry—and lowered it. Word flew that he was leaving to take command of the sister brig, the Niagara, which lay a quarter of a mile or so from where we stood. We all wished to go, but he would have only sound men; there were not a dozen on the ship who had all their blood in them. As they pulled away, Perry standing in the stern, D'ri lifted a bloody, tattered flag, and leaning from the bulwarks, shook it over them, cheering loudly.

"Give 'em hell!" he shouted. "We 'll tek care o' the ol' brig."

HORSE'S HOMING INSTINCT.

Homesick Old Servitor Performed Wonders to Get Back to His Master.

The doctor's horse had grown old and the doctor sent him to a farm across the river to pass his last days in ease and plenty. His wide pasture, sloping gently to the river, contained everything to please a horse: a never-failing spring where outbound vessels filled their water casks, at which he might drink if he chose, instead of from the river; shady willows in the hollows, and on the knolls apple trees where he might help himself to the apples that fell.

But in spite of all, relates the Christian Endeavor World, he must have grown homesick, for one morning the old horse appeared at the doctor's stable door. His wet coat told the story, he had swam the river.

At his pasture the Penobscot is 700 feet wide, very deep and currents are strong. No animal had ever crossed it there before except a band of circus elephants, too heavy to venture on the toll bridge, and even these had swam across some distance above.

After reaching the opposite bank the horse had to locate the town, and when he got to it made his way the whole length of a city of 20,000 inhabitants to his home.

Probably the old horse had never swam a stroke before in his life. How did he know he could get home by water when he had always crossed the river by a bridge before?

His Idea of a Lady.

An English cabman had brought suit against a woman for not paying the legal fare and his constant remark was, "She ain't a lady." "Do you know a lady when you see one?" asked the judge. "I do, yer honor. Last week a lady gave me a sov'rin instead ov a shillin', and I called out, 'Beg pardon, madam, I've got a sov'rin instead of a shillin',' and she shouts back, 'Well, you old fool, keep the change and get drunk with it!' That's wot I call a lady!'"—Chicago Daily News.

"Yes, I learned jiu-jitsu."

"Yes?"

"Yes, and when I was attacked by a huge hold-up man the other night I applied my knowledge."

"That's interesting."

"Yes; I sprang at him and applied the grip called 'the come-along,' by which the jiu-jitsu expert catches his victim and leads him wherever he will."

"That was great, wasn't it?"

"It would have been, but the footpad had never heard of jiu-jitsu, and he picked me up and slammed me down till I thought every bone in my body was broken, then he robbed me at his leisure and left."

"To what do you ascribe your failure?"

"To the fact that he had never studied jiu-jitsu; had he done so he would have known that my hold rendered him powerless."—Houston Post.

Willie—Pa, why do they call a woman a man's helpmeet?

Pa—I suppose it is because when a man thinks of marrying the woman meets him halfway.—Boston Transcript.

P. O. Box 297, Little Rock, Ark.

Last spring and summer I used Dr. Pusheck's-Kuro with marvelous results. I regard this remedy as the wonder of the age. For years I have suffered with Nervousness, and when I got up mornings would be dizzy and for moments would have blind staggers. I have been under the care of four physicians; their treatment did not do me a particle of good. I have used three packages of Pusheck's-Kuro and am now a well and happy woman. Pusheck's-Kuro has created new blood and flesh for me; since using it I have gained 30 pounds. I lose no opportunity to recommend it to my many friends here. Very respectfully,

Mrs. W. Oury.

It is easy enough to be cheerful when things are coming right, but the man who faces adversity with a smile is the man who wins out in the end.

New Erie Locomotives.

The Erie Railroad has ordered 137 very heavy freight locomotives and 5600 freight cars. The company is also having built three of the new and fast type of passenger engines known as "balanced compounds." These locomotives will pull more passenger cars at a higher rate of speed than any other kind. The company is also having built three heavy Pacific type of passenger engines.

SEEDING IN PROGRESS IN WESTERN CANADA.

Mild Weather Is Bringing Thousands of Settlers.

The splendid yields of wheat, oats and barley produced by the farmers of Western Canada and the excellent prices received for the same, have been the means of giving an increased interest throughout the United States. As a result the inquiries made of the Agents of the Canadian Government have nearly doubled over those of the same period last year. Railroad companies are putting on increased carrying capacity to meet the demand made upon them for carrying passengers and freight. Everything points to a most prosperous year. There is room for hundreds of thousands additional settlers, much new land having been opened up for settlement this year.

It is quite interesting to look through the letters received from the Americans who have settled in Western Canada during the past few years, and considering the large number it is surprising how few there are who have not succeeded. An extract from a letter written by Mr. Geo. M. Griswold, of Red Deer, Alta., formerly of Grever, Montana, written on the 2d of January, is as follows:

"I am located one and one-half miles from a beautiful lake ten miles long, where there is church, school, three stores, creamery and two post offices. The fine stock, both cattle (cows and steers), horses, hogs and sheep are rolling fat, grazing in pasture to-day, just a little snow, hardly enough for good sleighing, as we just had a Chinook which has melted the roads and laid bare the fields and pasture. There are fine wheat, oats, barley and flax raised here, also winter wheat and timothy hay for export to British Columbia. This is a mixed farming and dairy country. This is the right time to get a foothold in the Canadian West, as it was some years ago in the United States. We are free from wind gumbo and alkali here and have fine, clear, soft well and spring water at a depth of from 5 to 25 feet, and lots of open ever flowing springs."

Telegraphic advices from Medicine Hat say that seeding has commenced at Medicine Hat, Lethbridge, and other points. At the former place the temperature moderated gradually until on the 19th the maximum was 45 and the minimum 26. Thermometer readings since then have been as follows: 20th, 47 and 38; 21st, 54 and 34; 22d, 56 and 39; 23d, 48 and 40; 24th, 48 and 26.

During the last few days in February considerable plowing was done near Lethbridge. P. A. Pulley, a recent arrival from Montana, plowed and harrowed 15 acres and E. Laliborty about the same amount. Rev. Coulter White has also been harrowing his farm. All report the ground frost free and in excellent condition. Bricklaying has also begun in town. At Hartney, further east, on the 25th of February the sun was warm and bright, wheeled carriages were in use and the plowed fields look as if they are ready for the press drills. There is every appearance that spring has arrived, but farmers do not wish to be deceived by appearances and consequently have not commenced to use their bluestone and seed wheat.

ON SWEEPING A ROOM.

Hardwood Floors Infinitely Preferable to Carpets, But Where Latter Are Used Clean Strenuously.

It requires skill and patience to sweep a room properly. The chief mistake made by the novice is in taking long, heavy strokes. Short, light strokes which are firm do the work as it should be done. It is always best to sweep a heavy Brussels carpet or one of similar make once with the grain and then across it, going over each three or four yards in this way until the entire carpet is swept. When a carpet is old and worn evenly this is not necessary, but if it is new or has perceptible ridges in the weaving this method should be followed.

After going over a room thoroughly, allow the dust to settle, and in ten or fifteen minutes give it the final brushing—sweeping once again rather lightly. This can be done with a carpet sweeper or dampened broom. Tea leaves scattered over the carpet, however, are better than either. They should be wrung out and loosely sprinkled over the carpet just before this final sweeping.

It is a good plan to add a cupful of salt to every two cupfuls of tea leaves used. The salt seems to brighten the colors of a faded carpet, as well as to aid in the removal of dust. When this second sweeping is over use a whisk broom around the corners and at the edges of the carpet.

After the walls are dusted and the carpet is thoroughly swept, some housekeepers wipe off the carpet's surface with a cloth dipped in salt and water and then thoroughly wrung out. This will remove every atom of dust. A cloth used for this purpose must be frequently rinsed out in fresh water, and then dipped again into salt and water, wringing thoroughly. Other housekeepers rub the carpet with a cloth wrung out as dry as possible from water to which two tablespoonfuls of ammonia have been added for every gollon. This will also brighten faded colors.

It is needless to say that in sweeping as thoroughly as this everything in the room should either be removed or covered carefully with dusting sheets. Housekeepers who are buying heavy pieces of furniture should select only those that can be set on casters, so that they can be pushed out and the dust under them removed.

It is a great mistake to neglect sweeping as thoroughly as this once a week. Dust that becomes ground into a carpet wears it out more than anything else. Fortunately, many houses of to-day are built with hardwood floors, so that this burden of sweeping is materially lessened. Wood floors are easily swept with hair brushes or rubbed with crude petroleum or simply polished with a waxing brush.—N. Y. Tribune.

NOVEL CHICKEN DISHES.

An Excellent Recipe for Chicken Pudding and Full Directions for Giving the Meat Wild Flavor.

An improvement on old-fashioned chicken pie, which was always a rather insipid dish, is chicken pudding. Cut up two chickens, if a good-sized pudding is wanted, and fry them in a very hot saucepan with chopped salt pork and a few slices of onion. The frying is merely to seal the outside, and five minutes is ample time to allow for this. Fill the saucepan half full of boiling water, season with salt and pepper, and stew the chicken until it is quite tender. Remove from the liquor and place in a baking dish. Make a batter with flour, milk, a tablespoonful of butter and three eggs, whites and yolks beaten separately. Pour this over the chicken and bake. Boil down the liquor in which the chicken was stewed, thicken with a roux of flour and butter, and serve in a sauce boat with the pudding.

Chicken cooked after the following recipe closely resembles prairie chicken: Large fowls are slowly steamed until tender. In a deep skillet place a heaping tablespoonful of butter, several slices of bacon, half a dozen peppercorns and half a dozen whole cloves. Roll the pieces of chicken in salted flour and fry until brown. At the last moment add a cupful of cream, allow it to heat and serve at once.—Good Housekeeping.

An Ex-Sheriff Talks.

Scott City, Kan., March 20th.—(Special)—Almost every newspaper tells of cures of the most deadly of kidney diseases by Dodd's Kidney Pills. Bright's Disease, Diabetes, Rheumatism and Bladder troubles, in fact any disease that is of the kidneys or caused by disordered kidneys is readily cured by this great American remedy.

But it is in curing the earlier stages of kidney complaint that Dodd's Kidney Pills are doing their greatest work. They are preventing thousands of cases of Bright's disease and other deadly ailments by curing Kidney Disease when it first shows its presence in the body.

Speaking of this work Ex-Sheriff James Scott of Scott County, says:

"I have used eight boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills and must say that they are just the thing for Kidney Disease. We have tried many kidney medicines but Dodd's Kidney Pills are the best of all."

You can sometimes extract a good deal of comfort and some profit out of knowing when to quit hoping for the best.—Puck.

WOMEN NOT TRUTHFUL

This Statement Has Been Unjustly Made, Because Modest Women Evade Questions Asked By Male Physicians.

An eminent physician says that "Women are not truthful; they will lie to their physician." This statement should be qualified; women do tell the truth, but not the whole truth, to a male physician, but this is only in regard to those painful and troublesome disorders peculiar to their sex.

There can be no more terrible ordeal to a delicate, sensitive, refined woman than to be obliged to answer certain questions when those questions are asked, even by her family physician. This is especially the case with unmarried women.

Is it any wonder, then, that women continue to suffer and that doctors fail to cure female diseases when they cannot get the proper information to work on?

This is the reason why thousands and thousands of women are now corresponding with Mrs. Pinkham. To her they can and do give every symptom, so that she really knows more about the true condition of her patients, through her correspondence with them than the physician who personally questions them.

If you suffer from any form of trouble peculiar to women, write at once to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., and she will advise you free of charge.

The fact that this great boon, which is extended freely to women by Mrs. Pinkham, is appreciated, the thousands of letters received by her prove. Many such grateful letters as the following are constantly pouring in.

Mrs. Ella Lee, Frankford, Ind., writes: Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I want to thank you for what your medicine has done for me.

"Three years ago I had inflammation of the ovaries and ulcers on my womb. I was under the doctor's care for about three months, and the only time I was not in pain was when under the influence of morphine. The doctor finally said I never would be better, and would be an invalid the rest of my life. I had given up in despair, but one evening I came across one of your advertisements and decided to write you for advice. I did so and commenced to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I began to improve at once, and to-day I am a well woman, and I know it is all due to your advice and medicine.

Mrs. J. H. Farmer of 2809 Elliott Avenue, St. Louis, Mo., writes:

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—

"I cannot thank you enough for what your advice and medicines have done for me. They have done me more good than all the doctors I ever had.

"For the last eight years I have suffered with female troubles; was very weak; had nervous prostration, and could not do my work; but I am happy to say Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has made a different woman of me. I am in perfect health and have gained in weight from 98 pounds to 122 pounds."

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record for actual cures of female ills as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

THE SECRET OF SUCCESS with Pusheck's Kuro is that it does what no other medicine can do. It affects the grand trio—the Stomach, the Blood, and the Nerves—that controls and regulates the whole body—it corrects the digestion and assimilation of food; keeps up the body, and corrects, regulates and strengthens the nerves. This explains why one medicine permanently cures so many apparently different diseases.—Other remedies work on one organ only, and cannot effect a complete cure. A Happy Man.

The happiest man in the world is the common every-day chap who makes his own living, pays his bills, has a little money as he goes along, but doesn't strive to get a corner on the local output and is a slave neither to ambition or society. He loves his God and his fellowman, thinks there is "no place like home" the haven of rest, prefers the company of his wife and children to that of anyone else, never has to sit up at night to poultice his conscience, believes in the doctrine of live and let live, and when he encounters one of the needy he doesn't stutter with his pocketbook. The plain man is happy because he is satisfied and does not spend the best of his life yearning for things four sizes too large for him.—Ex.

The attendance this month was the poorest of the year, due partly to the large number sick. The record should be better and would be if pupils were kept out of school for only strictly necessary reasons. The High School made the best record, 98 and Miss Commings' school was the only other to reach a per centage of over 95.

Six schools had presented to them each a very good picture, nicely framed, gifts of the members of the school board. The subject is "Dido's House at Carthage." Mr. Parsons, long a member of the school board, shows his interest by presenting to the grammar schools a picture, also nicely framed, entitled "Birth of Our Flag."

A DANGEROUS HABIT.

Gladstone's Physician Gives Warning Against a Growing American Custom.

The growing habit amongest Americans of taking a mint tablet or some other so called digestive after eating a hearty meal, is something that Sir Andrew Clarke, Mr. Gladstone's physician, advises strongly against, says: "It is absolutely dangerous to take into the stomach remedies which are popularly supposed to aid in the digestion of food."

There is nothing known to the science of medicine that can perform the work of the human stomach. Drugs do not and cannot digest the food. They simply decompose it. What can be more revolting or disgusting than the thought of taking something into the stomach that is going to turn the good food you have eaten into a mass of corruption.

The only way to overcome indigestion and its evil effects is to remove all irritation. Congestion and inflammation from the stomach, liver and intestines, and Mi-o-na is the only agent known that will do this.

When a Mi-o-na tablet is taken before each meal every trace of irritation and inflammation is removed from the stomach and digestive system, and those organs will extract from the food all that goes to make good, rich blood, firm muscle, steady nerves and a sound healthy body. If you suffer with headaches, indigestion, flatulency, spots before the eyes, vertigo, or dizziness, palpitation of the heart, sleeplessness, or any stomach trouble, get a fifty cent box of Mi-o-na from L. Taggart one of our most reliable druggist, whose faith in the remedy is shown by his offer to return the money if Mi-o-no does not give complete satisfaction.

Womanly Health, Strength and Beauty

Strength and beauty in woman depend entirely upon her health. A woman cannot look her best if suffering from one or more of the many ailments peculiar to her sex. These ailments invariably cause, sooner or later, the loss of her symmetry of form and freshness of complexion.

AUNT DINAH'S OLD VIRGINIA
Herb Tea

Makes Strong and Beautiful Women.

It is a most pleasant and effective remedy for the troubles which cause so much suffering among women the world over. It relieves immediately and eventually cures all cases of disordered menstruation, female weakness, prolapsus, chronic constipation, sick head ache, nervousness and sleeplessness. These are the ailments which deprive a woman of her youth and beauty and make her old before her time. The use of the Herb Tea will enable her to retain these qualities. It clears the complexion and improves the form. A cupful at bed time will give a woman health and strength.

Hamlins Wizard Oil Co., Chicago, Ill.:

Gentlemen:—My wife had been suffering with female weakness and extreme nervousness which latter the physician who has been attending her for a long time attributed to her being unable to sleep. After tossing about all night she would invariably rise in the morning with a terrible headache. The doctor seemed to be able to do nothing for her and she was constantly getting worse. She decided to try your Herb Tea and drank a cupful before retiring. In the morning she arose after a good night's rest and without a headache for the first time in months. She has continued taking it during the past three months and has forgotten what a sleepless night means. She is feeling splendid and every one remarks how well she is looking. Her complexion is as clear as a young girl's and her figure has improved wonderfully. Yours truly,

Business Opportunities

The undersigned desires to dispose of some of his business establishments in Emporium, now doing a prosperous business. Not having time to devote the attentions I must sell.

I will dispose to the right party either my clothing stock and good-will, located next door to Bank, or my Merchant Tailoring store, near M. E. Church. With the latter I will sell the building, known as the old Masonic building, at a bargain. This is a good opportunity for a live business man, to engage in a well known and established trade.

A number of good lots for sale, located near my tailoring establishment, at low price. These lots are located in the centre of Emporium on Fourth Street, the Main business street.

We will talk business to only business men.
